HAIR LOSS & THINNING

Hair loss and thinning can be a deeply personal concern, affecting both appearance and self-confidence. It may be caused by genetics, hormonal changes, stress, or nutritional deficiencies, and often progresses gradually if left untreated. At Dermaluxe, we view hair restoration as both a medical and emotional journey, requiring precision and compassion.

Our dermatologists begin with a thorough scalp and hair assessment to uncover the underlying cause. We then design individualized programs that may include advanced exosome therapy, PRP scalp treatments, and dermatologist-prescribed oral or topical medications. For patients seeking a holistic boost, we also provide nutritional drips and lifestyle guidance to support hair health from within.

Each treatment is performed with medical accuracy, using the latest technologies to reactivate dormant follicles and strengthen existing strands. With consistent care, patients can expect fuller, healthier-looking hair and renewed confidence. At Dermaluxe, restoring your hair is more than a treatment—it is restoring the way you feel about yourself.

ALOPECIA AREATA

Alopecia Areata is an autoimmune condition where the body's own immune system mistakenly attacks hair follicles, leading to sudden, patchy hair loss. It can appear on the scalp, eyebrows, or even the beard area, and often causes emotional stress as well as physical change. At Dermaluxe, our dermatologists approach this condition with both compassion and science, offering advanced therapies such as targeted immune modulation scalp injection, PRP, and exosome treatments to encourage regrowth. We also use medical-grade scalp assessments to monitor progress and adjust care plans. With early and consistent treatment, many patients experience visible regrowth and restored confidence.

DANDRUFF & OILY SCALP

An oily, flaky scalp is often caused by overactive sebaceous glands and an imbalance in the scalp's microbiome, leading to discomfort, visible flakes, and hair that feels heavy or greasy. At Dermaluxe, we know that scalp health is the foundation for healthy, beautiful hair. Instead of one-size-fits-all solutions, our dermatologists carefully assess each patient's scalp condition to identify the root cause. Based on this, we provide personalized medical-grade hair care products and dermatologist-prescribed ointments to restore balance and comfort. This approach helps regulate oil production, reduce dandruff, and create an optimal scalp environment for stronger, healthier hair growth. With consistent use of your tailored program, you can expect a refreshed scalp, less flaking, and hair that feels lighter and more vibrant.
